

CAPABILITY STATEMENT

APRIL 2022

The origins of Pentarch Forestry Timber can be traced back more than a century.

In 1892 Allen Taylor, a young man from Wagga Wagga established a timber merchant business in Sydney that operated sawmills on the New South Wales coast.

He also served as the Lord Mayor of Sydney for six years and was knighted in 1911.

During the 1980s, Pentarch Forestry acquired Allen Taylor and Co., together with other timber businesses.

Pentarch Forestry is now one of the largest manufacturers of Australian hardwood products and an industry leader in hardwood flooring. From its headquarters in Melbourne, Pentarch Forestry coordinates its production and distribution operations across Australia. The company's solid hardwood flooring products are produced at long-established mills in southern and northern New South Wales.

Pentarch Forestry has become one of the largest suppliers of hardwood timber in Australia with a diverse product range encompassing flooring, decking, cladding, decorative and structural timbers.

COMPANY PROFILE

Timber Mills

The mills are the backbone of the Pentarch Forestry organisation and provide great employment opportunities for people in regional areas of Australia. Pentarch Forestry has 6 mills around the east coast of Australia:

- Herons Creek
- Koolkhan
- Kyogle
- Murwillumbah
- Narooma
- Nowra

The mills are comprised of both dry and green mills and work closely with forestry to provide an ethically sourced sustainable quality product.

CHAIN OF CUSTODY & CERTIFICATION

Pentarch Forestry solid hardwood products have full Chain of Custody certification which meets the Responsible Wood AS 4707-2014.

Pentarch Forestry has implemented Responsible Wood Chain of Custody certification to support responsible and sustainable forest management in Australia. Chain of Custody tracks a forest or wood product from its origin in a certified forest, through to its end use by the consumer. The Responsible Wood Chain of Custody certification verifies that Pentarch Forestry solid hardwood products are produced from certified, legal and sustainable resources. As such, Chain of Custody is a tracking process that provides an environmental assurance standard for the sustainable use of Australia's forest resources.

The Responsible Wood Certification Scheme has been developed to promote sustainable forestry management specifically for the Australian environment. The scheme has mutual recognition by the Program for the Endorsement of Forest Certification Scheme (PEFC) the world's largest forest management certifier.

The Responsible Wood Certification Scheme is the only Australian forest certification scheme with an Australian Standard (AS 4708-2013).

With Responsible Wood certified products, the timber used for Pentarch Forestry's solid hardwood flooring and decking is sourced from legal and sustainably managed resources.

Promoting sustainable forest management

Note: Variations within a timber species are normal, therefore photographs, samples and displays can only be indicative of colour and should not be used for final selection. It is normal for natural timber products to react to changes in atmospheric and environmental conditions such as humidity and temperature.
